COVID-19Tips to Avoid Scams

Scammers may maliciously attempt to steal Economic Impact Payments during the COVID-19 pandemic. Please review and share the following tips based on information from the IRS:

- If you receive a phone call, text, or email asking for payment or confirmation of personal or financial information in connection with the Economic Impact Payment, it is probably a scam.
- Do not give out your account number, card number, PayPal, or other account information in response to a call, email, or text about the Economic Impact Payment.
- Do not click on links in texts or emails relating to Economic Impact Payments, as this could allow scammers to place tracing devices on your phone or computer and gain access to your personal information for later use.
- Do not engage with scammers or thieves; simply hang up or delete texts/emails. If your cell phone has the ability, mark the call as spam and block the number.

- If you receive a "stimulus check" for an odd amount, for instance $1,214.44, or a check that requires you to verify the check online or by calling a number, it is most likely a fraud.
- Since the start of the coronavirus pandemic, Ohio Jobs and Family Services officials say at least 1,500 cases of Unemployment Fraud have been identified.
- Criminals, possibly based overseas, are filing claims for benefits, using the names and personal information of people who have not lost their jobs.
- ODJFS says anyone who receives a letter with a PIN number who has not applied for unemployment benefits should immediately contact them.
- Fraud victims should also get a copy of their credit reports and closely monitor their bank accounts.

We are in Support of Our Community and the Fight Against Systemic Racism https://www.npr.org/2020/06/01/866794025/from-jobs-to-homeownership-protests-put-spotlight-on-economic-divide

As reported in the NPR article link above, African Americans are worse off than whites by almost every economic measure. That divide has only deepened during the national pandemic and civil unrest that has sent the country into its worst economic downturn in generations.

A survey by the Federal Reserve last year found that even in good times, African Americans are less able to pay their monthly bills than whites or Latinos. That is hardly surprising, since median income among African Americans is 41% lower than that of non-Hispanic whites.

FCUCU, one of the largest minority-owned financial institution in the state of Ohio, is committed to fighting against systemic racism, for racial equality, financial inclusion and independence for the communities it serves.
